10. Make a precis of the following passage : (15)

To most people a long journey by car is exhausting and disagreeable. After the first hundred miles, all except the enthusiastic driver and the hardiest of passengers begin to find that the heaviest and largest car is small and inclined to bounce, the smoothest road is rougher than the well-metalled track and forty miles an hour a more alarming speed than sixty miles an hour in the train. The longest non-stop run to Devon or to Scotland is made easy by the smoothness of the track and the solidity of the coaches, the comfort of the seats and still more by the lulling effect of continuous motion, of which the senses are aware though the bones and the muscles are not.

Few things are more restful at the beginning of a holiday than a long journey in a swift train, during which the traveler in his corner seat facing the engine and controlling the window does not read, nor even think, but watches the country unroll itself, mile after mile, a moving panorama. And the lulling effect is almost as great by night as by day. A man must be bored indeed by travel if lie does not feel the thrill of adventure in reaching the station at bedtime and settling into his tiny, cosy bedroom; the strangeness of going to bed in London to wake in Scotland. After the adventure, if his nerves be sound and his conscience clear, come hours of carefree sleep, broken perhaps by delightful moments of waking, when, without getting up he can move the blind aside and look out into the unknown night. Now that we take the train from choice, not as a few years back from necessity, the comfort and delight of railway traveling are impressed anew upon consciousness; and not the engine only, but the whole train is seen in the glow of childish memory and of mature love of ease.

11. Attempt an essay on any ONE of the following topics : (15)

(a) Benefits of Space Research.

(b) The Attractions of Foreign Travel.

12. Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow : (15)

From the very beginning Man has attempted what has seemed impossible. Man is different from the rest of the creation in this respect. He has an eternal thirst for adventure. This has led to countless new discoveries and inventions. Human curiosity is limitless. It is responsible for space flights and moon landings.

The desire to know what lies beyond the visible world takes many forms. The Everest hero Tenzing and the hero of the "Seven Seas", Mihir Sen, were inspired by the same restless spirit. Astronauts Armstrong., Collins and Aldrin, who were the first humans to set foot on the soil of the moon, have proved beyond doubt that Man shall not rest until he has conquered the entire universe.

Now the question arises : Is it enough to know and master nature? To answer It one should first answer a more basic question : which is more important knowing and understanding the world around you or knowing and understanding yourself? Everyone will agree that in the absence of self-knowledge, even the most advanced knowledge of the universe will be not only useless but also dangerous.

(a) "Man is diferent form the rest of the creation in this respect".

Here Man stands for

(i) A particular man

(ii) Tenzing and Mihir Sen

(iii) Armstrong, Collins and Aldrin

(iv) All mankind

(b) In what way is Man different from the rest of creation?

(c) 'It is responsible for space flights and Moon landings".

(i) Man's attempting the impossible

(ii) The difference between Man and the rest of the creation

(iii) human curiosity

(iv) Man's eternal thirst for adventure.

(d) "To answer it one should first answer a more basic question".

Here basic means

(i) Having to do with the foundation Upon which other things are built up

(ii) Urgent

(iii) Important

(iv) difficult

(e) "Which is more important – knowing and understanding the world around you or knowing and understanding yourself ". Here you stands for

(i) one particular person

(ii) an imaginary reader

(iii) only those who read this Passage

(iv) one, anyone

(f) When would even advance knowledge of the universe be dangerous?

(g) Pick out the expressions used in the passage, which mean the same as

(i) never-ending

(ii) a person who is trained to travel in a spacecraft

(iii) an unusual and daring enterprise.

(iv) none of the above.

13. (a) Use one word to express the idea of the phrase given : (10)
