Date: 9.11.2017

A One-Day Workshop on "Internal and External Evaluation on Shaala Siddhi" was organized by the Department of Education, Alagappa University, Karaikudi and Rashtriya Madhyamik Shiksha Abhiyan (RMSA), Tamil Nadu, on 9.11.2017 in the Seminar Hall of the Convocation Auditorium.

Presiding over the function, Prof. S. Subbiah, Vice-Chancellor, Alagappa University, expressed his happiness over addressing the elite audience which included Educational Administrators such as District Educational Officers, Headmasters of Higher Secondary Schools and Assistant Project Coordinators with rich academic efficiency and administrative ability. He referred to the Shaala Siddhi, a comprehensive instrument, which aims at refining the standards and evaluation methods leading to overall school improvement. Citing from his research experience and his visits to various schools, he lauded the role of SSA and RMSA in providing quality education in schools. While referring to importance given to quality education, he said that even thousands of years ago India remained a knowledge superpower and the Nalanda University of yore was the finest example for imparting quality education which attracted students from foreign countries. The 1:5 Teacher-Student ratio makes us ponder over the importance given to quality education in those days. He added that Indian System of Education is appreciated in many foreign countries as we are imparting education with values.

The Vice-Chancellor stated that in RMSA the internal and external evaluation done by the Inspecting Officers from their own departments gave them an insight into their own limitations and strengths. As a result they could rectify and improve the facilities in Schools. He noted that educational planners have to endeavour in linking education with employment and economic development. Quality education, he added, should make the students to be mentally and physically strong, emotionally stable, socially adjustable and useful to the society. The school evaluation system should take into account the teaching-learning process, professional development of teachers, infrastructure and library facilities such as RFID system. Recently in Alagappa University, he said, the world class Library facilities such as RFID has been established. The similar facilities have to be extended to the schools in near future for offering quality education.

Mr. K. Muthuswamy, Administrative Officer, RMSA, Chennai, in his felicitation address, had a word of praise for Alagappa University for starting a Resource School for the differently-abled students and also for providing modern infrastructural facilities in the University.

Dr. M. Sivakumar, Dean, School of Education, Alagpapa University, in his felicitation address, appealed to the teachers to establish good rapport with the society so as to mobilize resources to improve infrastructural facilities.

Mrs. K.P. Maheshwari, CEO&DPC, Sivagangai, in her Special Address, noted that this training programme is an excellent platform for sharing knowledge on RMSA components. She said that the students should be oriented to know about the history of their own region and they must also be trained to bring out their inner talents and make use of them for the societal benefit.

Prof. K. Gurunathan, Syndicate Member, spoke on the occasion on the importance of Shaala Siddhi. Prof. G. Kalaiyarasan, Professor and Head i/c., welcomed the gathering. Dr. R. Ramnath, Organizing Secretary, proposed a vote-of-thanks.
