ABOUT US
Alagappa University, accredited with 'A' Grade by UGC's National Assessment and Accreditation Council (NAAC), came into existence by a Special Act of the Legislature of the Government of Tamil Nadu in May 1985 with the objective of fostering research, development and dissemination of knowledge in various branches of learning. This University has emerged from the galaxy of institutions initially founded by the great philanthropist and educationist Padmabushan (Late) Dr. RM. Alagappa Chettiar.

BACKGROUND
With the emergence of India in the 21st Century as a world-leading nation in terms of social, technological and economic development, there is an urgent need to modernize and expand agricultural productivity, particularly in the livestock sector, in order to maximize self-sufficiency in food supply and to augment GDP for a rapidly expanding and increasingly urbanized population. In response to this need, corporate farming enterprises in poultry, small ruminant, buffalo, dairy, meat, and aquaculture production have emerged and are developing rapidly. In addition to corporate ownership, such initiatives feature multiple site utilization throughout a wide geographical range, and instigation of modern intensive production methods.
In order to address the growing demand for appropriately trained staff to manage such enterprises on a local basis, Alagappa University has recently established a Department of Animal Health and Management. The aim is to provide industry-oriented, degree level training, comprising approximately 60% veterinary and 40% management content. Alagappa University is a nation-leading University in the novel 'distance-learning' concept, with particular strengths in Management, and it boasts of a rapidly developing Science faculty, incorporating an active School of Biosciences, but it has yet to establish a veterinary profile.

RATIONALE FOR COLLOQUIUM
The purpose of this International Colloquium is to focus the attention of national policy-makers, academicians in agricultural biotechnology and industry-leaders throughout India on the vast opportunities in this area and develop strategies for harnessing the same. It is hoped that the colloquium will provide a forum for establishment of liaison and intellectual co-operation between Indian scientists and overseas experts in relevant areas of biotechnology and livestock-based agriculture.

OVERSEAS CONTRIBUTORS
Through formal presentation and informal discussions, overseas contributors to the colloquium are invited to share their insights and experience regarding biotechnological approaches to emerging diseases and management problems in intensive agricultural production worldwide, and in provision of scientific and veterinary services to the agricultural industry. In particular, aspects relating to chemotherapy and prophylaxis, vaccine development, disease diagnosis and surveillance in large and small ruminants, poultry, fish and pigs will be of particular interest in the light of India's evolving and modernizing agricultural economy. Further, emerging areas in basic research which are likely to impact future trends and developments in the agricultural sector will be highly relevant, for example, basic studies in genomic and proteomic variability and selection in pathogens, hosts and vectors, pathogen control and drug resistance (particularly relating to anthelminitics); drug target discovery, validation and rational drug design; host parasite interplay; molecular engineering and nanotechnology. Discussion and interaction centered on these and similar relevant aspects of basic bioscience will be particularly appreciated.
