INDIAN ACADEMY OF SOCIAL SCIENCES

Invitation From the President

October 10, 2006

To:

All Vice-Chancellors of Indian Universities, Directors of Research Institutes & National Laboratories and ISSA Members

Dear Colleagues,

I am happy to invite you, your colleagues and your research students to the forthcoming 30th session of the Indian Social Science Congress, which is being hosted by Alagappa University between December 27 and 31, 2006 at Karaikudi. As you know the XXX Indian Social Science Congress is to deliberate over "A New Global Society". In a way it demands development of a new science of a new global society. The demand is stupendous. We all need to think afresh collectively and creatively. The Global society in which we live today is no longer livable for majority of us. We all are confronted with ever rising unemployment, poverty, disease, illiteracy, corruption, rape, murder and mass annihilation. Terrorism of all sorts is on top of all this. Political crimes in the garb of communalism, religious bigotry, casteism etc pervade all walks of our life. The question to ponder is. How to get rid of all these? Can we create a new democratic global society free from all these evils of modern global society ? If yes, how ? If no, Why? Do we need to effect paradigmatic shift in our modern science? If yes, what would be the parameters of the new science and new technology of new global society? How to over come the ecological and environmental problems of today? How to restore fertility of the soil? What would be the new ethical and moral foundations of the new global society? How to relate the dominance of market forces? How to make cooperation and not competition the foundation of new global society? All these are very serious questions over which we need to put our minds together in order to evolve a new vision of the new global society.

I, therefore, extend a very cordial invitation to you all to participate in the deliberations of the XXX Indian Society Science Congress. Twenty six Intradisciplinary Research Committees, 34 Multidisciplinary Thematic Research Committees, 6 ISSA Research & Training Committees, numerous seminars/symposia/colloquia, several Ad Hoc Group Discussions and special/public lectures provide exciting opportunities to every scientist, teacher, policy planner, social thinker, philosopher and social activists. Let you spread this message to all those whom you know and come to the XXX Indian Social science Congress in large number.

We look forward for a very pleasant and stimulating meeting.

With regards and greetings,

Yours sincerely,

N. Markandan
President

XXX INDIAN SOCIAL SCIENCE CONGRESS

01. Indian Social Science Congress

The Indian Academy of Social Sciences (ISSA) shall hold the 30th session of Indian Social Science Congress (XXX ISSC) under the auspices of Alagappa University between December 27 and 31, 2006 at Karaikudi with a view to discovering, developing and disseminating new science of Nature-Man-Society—the science that is capable of enabling every child, man and woman to enjoy higher quality of material, social, cultural and spiritual life in a world which is free from violence of all kinds; where there is near perfect harmony between Nature-Man-and-Society and which is deeply rooted in the principles of true democracy, The deliberations of the XXX ISSC shall open with the inaugural speech by the Chief Guest, Sri Arjun Singhji, the Hon'rable Minister For Human Resource Development, Government of India on December 27, 2006.

Indian Social Science Congress strives to bring all branches of scientists together (e.g. social, historical, philosophical, physical, chemical, mathematical, statistical, biological, medical, health, agricultural, ecological, environmental, engineering, biotechnology, computer science, information technology, management etc.) in order to discover, develop and disseminate science of Nature-Man-Society through critical appraisal and integration of current researches, theories and methods being pursued in Indian universities, colleges, research institutes and laboratories in particular, and world universities and research institutes in general. To ISSA, science is social by its very nature of being objective knowledge of living and non-living things encompassing whole of the universe. Current divisions of science in narrow boundaries is artificial and not natural. ISSA places great premium on knowing more and more about more and more and not more and more about less and less.

There are 26 Intradisciplinary Research Committees, 34 Multidisciplinary Thematic Research Committees and 6 Interdisciplinary Research & Training Committees in the Indian Social Science Congress. Each Intradisciplinary Research Committee aims at appraising and integrating current research and theory within it. Each Multidisciplinary and Interdisciplinary Thematic Research Committee strives to appraise and integrate cross discipline research and theory on the given theme with a view to evolving common language and common theoretical and methodological framework. Scientists of all branches of science come together to interact and exchange on a carefully chosen focal theme. The ISSC also encourages young scientists to plan and organize any kind of group discussion on any theme through Ad Hoc Group discussions, special seminars/symposia. There is a Young Scientists Division within ISSA.
