ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

The economy and social order are supported invisibly by a good governance model. A set of traditions, rules, and procedures used to manage and oversee a corporation is known as corporate governance. As it establishes a setting that assures accountability and openness in its disclosure, it plays a crucial role in corporate structure. The entire structure of traditional works has been altered by technology. Initially, technology was adopted by replacing paper with paperless, which was e-Governance, but recent technological advances have resulted in Artificial Intelligence (AI), which is corporate governance 4.0. The need for technological innovation in corporate governance is a result of the current need to enhance accountability and transparency. Governance 4.0 would substitute long-term strategic thinking for the short-term crisis management of today. Action on climate change, reversing biodiversity loss and environmental damage brought on by human activity, and addressing social related concerns like involuntary migration must go hand-in-hand with a focus on the pandemic, socioeconomic crises, and people's mental health. Business and finance are extremely significant. But rather than the other way around, they must serve both society and nature.

Academics, practitioners, postgraduate students, and policymakers will have a significant opportunity to connect and exchange ideas at the conference, which will help everyone better understand corporate governance concerns in India and talk about novel and challenging issues in corporate governance topics during the conference.
